Our Supply Chains

As a designated broader public sector organization Ornge is required to comply with the Ontario Broader Public Sector Procurement Directive ("Directive") and the Ontario Broader Public Sector Supply Chain Code of Ethics.

Ornge sources its supply of goods and services in compliance with the Directive which require the use of open competitive procurement process for goods and services over C$121,200.

We Are Aware of Risks of Forced Labour or Child Labour Use in Global Supply Chains

Forced labour and child labour are unfortunately prevalent in global supply chains. Global suppliers rely on complex and often opaque supply chains that span multiple countries, making it difficult to monitor and enforce ethical labour practices. This makes workers in these supply chains vulnerable to exploitation and abuse.

Forced labour refers to all work or service which is exacted from any person under the threat of a penalty and for which the person has not offered himself or herself voluntarily. Child labour refers to work that deprives children of their childhood, their potential and their dignity, and that is harmful to their physical and/or mental development. Despite international efforts, forced labour and child labour continue to be pervasive in many global supply chains.

Ornge is committed to ensuring that forced labour and child labour are not used in its supply chains.

The highest risk of forced labour in our supply chains stems from our purchase of goods from outside Canada, including vehicles and parts of vehicles.

How We Ensure Our Supply Chains Are Free of Forced Labour and Child Labour

Ornge's procurement of goods and services is managed through its specialized procurement department, whose staff have received training on forced labour.

In 2023 Ornge updated its procurement processes to require prospective suppliers to declare that they do not engage in, or condone, the unlawful employment or exploitation of children in the workplace, or the use of forced or involuntary labour of any type (e.g., forced, bonded, indentured or involuntary prison labor), and, therefore, they prohibit the use of child, forced or involuntary labour within their supply chain. Ornge does not accept submissions from prospective suppliers who cannot make the required declaration.

Ornge has not yet developed a process for evaluating its effectiveness in ensuring that forced labour and child labour are not being used in its businesses and supply chains. Ornge is engaged with a procurement consultant to develop a wider vendor risk management strategy which includes Forced Labour and Child Labour components.

How We Have Addressed Reported Risks or Use of Forced Labour or Child Labour our in Supply Chains

To date, Ornge has not faced situations of forced labour or child labour and has therefore not had to remedy and rectify such situations.
